It shall be possible to issue the company's shares in two series, Series A and Series B. In any voting at a general meeting of shareholders, a share in series A (A-share) shall give ten votes and a share in series B (B-share) one vote.

If shares of both classes are issued, the number of shares in each series may amount to not more than ninety-nine one hundredth parts of the whole number of shares in the company.

If the company decides to issue new shares of Series A and Series B through a cash issue or a set-off issue, the owners of shares of Series A and Series B shall have the preferential right to subscribe for new shares of the same class in proportion to the number of shares which the holder previously owns (primary preferential right). Shares which have not been subscribed for with primary preferential right shall be offered for subscription (subsidiary preferential right) to all the shareholders. If the number of shares thus offered is not sufficient for the subscription which takes place with subsidiary preferential right, the shares shall be distributed between the subscribers in proportion to the number of shares which they previously own and, if this cannot take place, through the drawing of lots.

That which has been stated above shall not impose any restriction on the possibility of making a decision with respect to an issue which deviates from the preferential rights of the shareholders.

If the company decides to issue subscription options or convertibles through a cash issue or a set-off issue, the shareholders shall have the preferential right to subscribe for subscription options as though the issue concerned those shares which may come to be newly subscribed for due to the option, and also the preferential right to subscribe for convertibles as though the issue concerned those shares for which the convertibles may come to be exchanged.

If the share capital is increased through a bonus issue, new shares of each class shall be issued in proportion to the number of shares of the same class which previously existed. In that connection, old shares of a certain class shall mean the right to new shares of the same class. That which had here been stated shall not impose any restriction on the possibility of issuing shares of a new class through a bonus issue, after the requisite alteration has been made in the Articles of Association.
